PRESS RELEASE

Women in eDiscovery Announces its 2017 National Sponsors

MINNEAPOLIS, MN – February 28, 2017 – Women in eDiscovery, an organization that brings together women interested in technology related to the legal profession, announced today its national sponsors for 2017. Women in eDiscovery (WiE) does not collect membership dues, and so it is completely reliant on sponsors to support its operations and events.

Jackie Rosborough, executive director of Women in eDiscovery, states, “We thank our national sponsors who are dedicated to supporting Women in eDiscovery. WiE is the largest non-profit legal organization for women and a place where professionals from AMLAW 100 law firms and Fortune 1000 corporations as well as small firms and technology start-up companies have the opportunity to network, attend educational presentations and participate in many philanthropic activities throughout the year. We would not be able to operate and fund our organization's activities without the support of our national sponsors and the legal community as a whole. And for that, we are very thankful.”
